Zelle attorneys have decades of experience in successfully defending insurance carriers against claims for bad faith and extra-contractual liability in high-stakes coverage litigation in state and federal trial and appellate courts across the United States. Because of our extensive experience in successfully defending insurers against bad faith and extra-contractual claims, insurance carriers frequently call upon Zelle attorneys to counsel them through the claim process to try to avoid bad faith claims in the first instance. Our experienced attorneys provide bad faith avoidance counseling at the claim level to major property and casualty insurers and smaller regional companies for whom we handle matters on a national or regional geographic basis.
